Not exactly luxurious are the kitchens and services at Komandorski Village, Pleasanton's low-income housing project, but residents have learned to live with the situation. Several are satisfied with the accommodations while others feel the facility should be torn down and rebuilt.

Maid coronation Sunday

PLEASANTON — What is 17 to 19 years of age, average to tall in height, possessed of an exquisite figure and blessed with an exceptional personality?

Why it's the next Maid of Pleasanton, who'll be crowned following the annual Maid of Pleasanton Pageant Sunday at Castlewood Country Club. Tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce offices on W. Neal Street for Sunday's luncheon program, which begins at 1 p.m.

The young woman accepting the tiara and sash from reigning Maid of Pleasanton Julie Hemming will have quite a year ahead, especially the next month.

Following Sunday's program at Castlewood, she'll represent the city in the Maid of Alameda County Pageant right here at the Fairgrounds on Sunday, June 26.

But before that, the Maid of Pleasanton will receive an all-expenses paid trip to Southern California where she and other titlists will visit Knott's Berry Farm, Enchanted Village, the Wax Museum and stay at the Convention Center Hotel in Buena Park.

The Maid of Alameda County Pageant at the Fairgrounds Amphitheatre brings together titlists from throughout the county.

Julie Hemming is also reigning Maid of Alameda County and was a runnerup to Maid of California last summer.

Jerry Havel of KQIQ will emcee Sunday's program, which will be preceded by a reception for the contestants and a luncheon.

Barbara Purrington is pageant coordinator and the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce is again sponsoring the Pageant.

Vying for the title Sunday will be Kathy Abreu, Jori Alexander, Joni Corege, Kym Faris, Jennie Gualandri, Sandy Geck, Laura Matthews, Karen Payne, Dawn Perry, and Cindy Wagner.

Asks retrial

Sentence delay for convicted murderer

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Sentencing for young David Barker, the San Ramon youth found guilty last month in the triple slayings of the Braeseke family, was postponed yesterday to June 9 pending his lawyer's motion for a new trial.

Attorney Barry Morris said he is asking for a new trial on grounds the prosecution was allowed to ask allegedly prejudicial questions when the 16-year-old took the witness stand.

Barker, who will be 17-years-old tomorrow, was convicted last month for the Aug. 23 murders of Floyd and Barbara Braeseke, and 80-year-old John Braeseke. His partner, Barry Braeseke, 21, was found guilty last week in a separate trial for the murders of his parents and grandfather.

Morris said deputy district attorney Michael Cardoza asked Barker why the youth had lied to police when first interrogated, if, as Barker claimed, he was simply afraid of Braeseke.

Morris claims the question violated his client's right not to incriminate himself.

The Oakland attorney objected at the time, but Superior Court Judge Stanley P. Golde upheld the question.

Morris said he has researched precedents and feels he has a good case. "But then," he added, "I'm an optimist."

Proceedings were handled in Judge Golde's chambers while the pudgy, cherub faced youth sat leafing through a copy of "The Law" and smiling at his parents.

Morris will also question the judge's instructions to the jury, again claiming there was some judicial error.

His arguments will be filed next week.

An appeal is also expected.

'I fly it'

Some special airport traffic

LIVERMORE — Sometime around 10 a.m. tomorrow the airport tower will get a call asking clearance for a big kite.

It seems that some of the missionaries from the local Mormon Church saw the reactions to the recent "I Found It!" campaign and decided advertising techniques could also work for them.

The elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will attempt to launch a kite measuring 26 by 20 feet at May Nissen Park between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

The kite weighs 90 pounds, has 164 feet of bamboo poles, 440 feet of nylon rope and 472 square feet of black plastic sheeting.

Noticing that their proselytizing door-to-door sometimes gets a response like "Go fly a kite," Elder David Griffin told The Times "we're going to do just that."

On the black plastic in large white letters is the slogan, "Family Unity Through Unity," and below that is painted a replica of the Mormon Temple in Oakland.

"We hope to generate questions about the temple," said Griffin. "Then we can give people information about it."

He noted the temple has free guided tours seven days of the week and was encouraging people to visit the site.

"It's huge," exclaimed Joanne Archuleta, a Livermore resident who watched her fellow church members construct the kite. "I think they'll get it up in the sky."

"If more people would spend at least one night a week together with their families," she said, "there would be fewer problems."

Griffin said 10-12 people would be needed to fly the huge kite and they may have to use a truck with a winch to pull it down from the heavenly winds.

Shirley Clarfield

Eight years later she seeks owner

PLEASANTON — Somewhere in that asphalt jungle called New York City a lady is missing a lovely locket with the inscription "To Margaret, from her friends at the U.N."

That locket is in Pleasanton and how it came to this city is quite a story in itself. Let Shirley Clarfield, a 78 year old retiree from a career as a foster mother raising retarded children, tell it.

"My late husband — he died six months ago — and I lived in San Francisco for 45 years, up by the Laguna Honda home. He had Parkinson's Disease about seven or eight years ago and we took a trip back to New York City, the last trip he was able to take. I'm from New York City and my husband was born in San Francisco.

"In a downtown street in New York City my husband found a medalion with the inscription about the lady from the U.N. We tied it up in a little piece of tissue and a rubber band. My husband put it in his pants' pocket, but later he burned a cigarette hole in his pants.

"When we got back from the trip, my husband didn't wear the pants. It cost too much to have the pants reweaved because of the cigarette burn and the pants hung in the closet until after he died six months ago. I decided to give the pants to the Good Will recently and when I went through the pockets, I found the medalion," said Mrs. Clarfield.

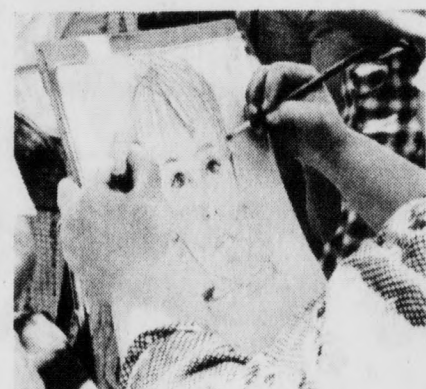

She stopped a passing police patrol car in the Amador Center parking lot one day and presented the officer with the medalion in the hope all citizens have that the police will find the rightful owner.

Investigating Officer Pat Nordine has the locket and intends to write to the United Nations to see if Margaret or her U.N. friends are still around and still looking for memories of lost times.

Art in action

Art in Vineyard

Families interested in avoiding weekend traffic can be entertained right here in the valley, at the Livermore Art Association's Sunday, May 29 "Art in the Vineyard," scheduled from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Concannon Vineyard on Tesla Road. The annual free event will feature such art-in-action demonstrations as tapestry weaving, zipper art and stained glass techniques. Folksingers, a barbershop chorus and strolling musicians will also enhance on-going activities, and children will enjoy Anton ("the world's worst magician") from noon to 1 p.m., followed by the Laughing Cricket Puppet Theatre at 1:30 to 2 and 3:30 to 4 p.m. Wine tasting will begin at noon and continue until 5 p.m. LAA members have donated everything from unframed watercolors to handwoven hangings to benefit the club's scholarship fund, with tickets priced at 50 cents, or three for $1. The drawing will be held at 2, 3 and 4 p.m.

Lights out policy may not save much

PLEASANTON — The glowing prospect of saving $46,000 by turning off 20 per cent of the city's street lights may be a lot dimmer than city council members think.

For one thing, the city may not save as much money as expected, according to one PG&E official.

For another thing, a similar plan in Pacifica brought the wrath of more than 1,000 petition signers upon the city council and service was restored within two weeks. And Pacifica had a $1 million deficit in its city budget.

Pleasanton is not as desperate as Pacifica to turn out the lights.

Pacifica, which lashed off 15 assistant planners, assistant engineers and other white collar types to help balance the budget, wanted to cut off a third of the lights. City Manager Don Weidner told The Times Thursday.

After a field survey conducted by the engineering and police departments, 25 per cent of the fixtures were turned off, most of them in the middle of residential blocks.

There was never a word breathed from a citizen during the five week period the council discussed turning off the lights and the time it was accomplished. But then the fuses blew.

"Within two weeks, the lights were back on," said Weidner. "The citizens feared crime and accidents. It was an acknowledged emotional reaction. We learned that people feel about street lights the way they do about stop signs. They are not interested in whether or not they work; they simply feel they do work."

The Pleasanton City Council discussed turning off some street lights in 1973, but this raised protests, primarily from downtown merchants who feared greater burglary activity. A few weeks ago the council made it clear that downtown won't be affected in the proposed street light cut. So far there have been no protests.

The council assumes that it will save $5.76 per street light in cutting off 20 per cent of the lights. Not true, according to Gene Ward of PG&E's Hayward office. That $5.76 isn't just the electricity that goes into the lights each year. The charge represents everything — capitalization cost of the street pole, the $5 photoelectric cell on each pole that turns on each light at night, the mercury vapor lamp which can burn out, and the wiring.

If the city wants to save the entire sum, it will need to have the light removed, said Ward. In light of what happened in Pacifica, PG&E thinks that Pleasanton will want to give "Lights Out" a trial run, say perhaps a year, before thinking of removing the poles, said Ward. Of course, only the cost of electricity would be saved during that time. He didn't have any figure about how much.

Ward did have approximate figures, though, on how much could be saved if the city turned on all street lights an hour later and turned them off in the morning one hour earlier. It would save 52 cents a month per pole. With more than 2,600 street lights in Pleasanton, that would work out to around $1,300 per month or $15,600 per year. Lopping off two more hours obviously would double those figures.

But the city also would have to pay for installation of new photoelectric cells to change the lighting hours. That's assuming anyone manufactures other than the two foot candles type which all cities across the nation use.

And an even bigger drawback could be a lawsuit from some accident victim whose lawyer would contend that poor lighting caused the accident. If the city lost a suit like that, the higher insurance premiums could wipe out 10 years of savings in electricity, said Ward.

Sup. Raymond asks answers on New Town

LIVERMORE — City department heads have been given the task of answering what City Manager Bill Parness calls "very deep, penetrating questions" that county supervisor Valerie Raymond has on the effects of proposed New Town development on Livermore.

Raymond this week sent a five page set of questions to Harlan Geldermann, asking probing questions about his proposed city of 45,000 people. She asked Parness for similar information about density comparisons, capital costs of development, industrial competition, airport impact, low income housing, police protection, school impact, sewage capacity, traffic and commuting patterns and other items.

"It will take a lot of research to gather the information," Parness told The Times. "We will try to answer the questions fully and respond to her the latter part of next week."

Meanwhile, a spot survey of the department heads indicated they did not have enough information for complete answers. Many said the Geldermann proposal and the county's pending amendment for the Valley's general plan were too vague to supply complete answers.

Only 600 acres of the proposed New Town overlap with Livermore's projected growth through 1990 according to the city's general plan, said Planning Director Howard Nies. Stated for possible residential low density rating Nies estimated 900 homes could fit into the overlapping area.

A sewer main line has already been constructed for that area, according to Public Works Director Dan Lee, who said Raymond's question on capital costs of development in the Las Positas Valley would not seriously affect the city because developers would be expected to bear all costs of sewer line extensions and connections.

He saw no impact of the airport on the proposed New Town, even though the airport master plan anticipates a second runway in a few years.

He answered a question about runoff, noting any development along the Arroyo Las Positas would require upgrading of the channel by any developer, including Geldermann.

New Town comment fills Granada hall

LIVERMORE — The first round of applause at last night's public hearing came when labor representative William Ward told county supervisors, "it's the effluent people who oppose New Town."

Several hundred packed into Granada High School to listen to the battle of the proposed development of Las Positas — the first revision of the general plan in a decade.

Supervisors Charles Santana, Fred Cooper, Valerie Raymond and John George listened to the debate between environmentalists and builders who wrestled with ideas that New Town would bring air and water problems along with housing and employment.

Bill Thompson, who farmed in Las Positas, was surprised that the local school board would "thumb their nose at an extra $20 million if New Town was built."

Thompson got a laugh when he said "as far as water and sewage go, I think we should pump our waste water over the Altamont into the California Aqueduct and let the people in Southern California drink it after we're finished using it."

A point of order was called by one woman who claimed the teamsters and construction people were trying to pull off a filibuster.

Sierra Club member George Bing thumbed through the latest addition of Audobon while the laborers talked. When Bing took the stand he said "there's been a lot of damnation of the Rad Lab people opposing New Town. It's totally incorrect to condemn our influence in the situation."

"Those smart people at the Rad Lab tore up our beautiful city," said one angry construction man. "New Town would provide homes for 40,000 to 45,000 people," he added.

Construction workers have been forced out of the Valley because of the moratorium on building. They seemed to dominate the floor in hopes of convincing the board of more employment with the construction of New Town.

As proponents continued to voice their opinion, chairman Santana assured others they would have time to talk at another meeting if they did not make it to the stand by 11 p.m.

Outside patrols

Lab cops do stray

LIVERMORE — Contrary to Lawrence Livermore Laboratory management claims, LLL security forces regularly patrol areas outside of Lab boundaries, employ representatives charged yesterday.

In one case, security officers stopped a car near Site 300 on Corral Hollow Road whose occupants were "harassing" an LLL employee carrying high priority documents. The driver had been arrested one month earlier for allegedly robbing a Manteca bar at gunpoint.

Since the traffic stop was made off Lab property, where security personnel have no police powers, any violence that might have occurred would have left those officers without any enforcement powers, one spokesman said.

An LLL document instructs security officers to routinely patrol the Mocho Pump Facility on Mines Road, also outside the Lab's perimeter.

"The Mocho Pump Facility is a critical water supply system for the Laboratory and should receive prompt Protective Service Officer response," the directive stated. A map attached to the March 15 memo showed the area as outside the Lab's boundaries.

"Response shall include an inspection of the Mocho gates, locks, and buildings, and lock replacement, if necessary."

James Carothers, associate director of the Lab's human resources and laboratory relations division, had recently told The Times that, to the best of his knowledge, no officers were conducting any patrols outside LLL property.

Carothers was unavailable for comment yesterday.

Attendance

Quick now, how many of you reading this had perfect attendance during your high school years? Uh, huh! Well, how many compiled a perfect attendance record, say, from the fourth grade on through your senior year? Tch, tch, well you certainly couldn't match the record achieved by Doug Hawk, above, who received an award at the annual Dublin High awards assembly Thursday for P-E-R-F-E-C-T attendance from grade four through grade 12. Doug also received a $100 scholarship from the Murray Teachers Association. Among the leading recipients of scholarships were Giselle Honore and Melissa Zaraga, $2,700 California State Scholarships, and Mark O'Hara, who has accepted an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Amador teachers, trustees launch talks

PLEASANTON — Negotiations on a 1977-78 contract began Thursday between Pleasanton Joint School District administration and the Amador Valley Teachers Association (AVTA). At a meeting Wednesday night, trustees presented their initial response to the teacher unit contract proposal. AVTA had presented their initial proposal on April 26 and community reaction to the contract proposal was received following that, culminating in a public hearing May 11. The initial negotiating session yesterday included the AVTA negotiating team of Andy Jorgensen, chairman, Esther Crow, secretary, Kent Rees, and Don Smith. Representing the board were Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, a representative of legal counsel Keith Breon, and principals Ron Alsop and John Bristow. The initial discussion, and one scheduled for Tuesday, will center on binding arbitration of grievances, agency shop, maintenance of benefits, hours of employment, and reassignment and transfer.

Under the section on binding arbitration, the board proposes that certificated personnel not satisfied with the decision at the second step of the grievance process may submit a written request to the superintendent for advisory arbitration of the issue.

The board response adds, both parties will meet to select an impartial arbitrator or, if agreement cannot be reached on one, the American Arbitration Association shall be requested to supply a panel of five names and the rules of the association will be used for selection of the arbitrator.

At step four, or Level IV, arbitration recommendations would be submitted to the board for "appropriate action." If either party is not satisfied with the advisory recommendations, an appeal of the decision may be made to the board or superintendent.

Under the section on reassignment and transfer, the board response states, "The superintendent and/or administrative staff has the prerogative of reassigning and/or transferring employees. Notice of reassignment and/or transfer for the following school year shall be given to employees by the end of the current school year except when good cause or mutual agreement to waive the deadline exists. Final decisions on reassignments and/or transfers shall be made by the superintendent."

"Reassignments and/or transfers shall not be made for punitive or disciplinary reasons," the section concludes.

At the close of each negotiating session, the board states, an agenda will be set for the following meeting and the minutes of the meeting will be reviewed and tentatively agreed upon. Rosemary Mecozzi, Krause's secretary, will be responsible for taking the minutes.

Copies of the board's initial proposal are available at each of the Pleasanton district schools and the Pleasanton Library.

CC trustees pondering unification

PLEASANT HILL — The Contra Costa County Board of Education will make a decision on whether or not to support the Walnut Creek school unification proposal on June 14 at 7 p.m.

Board members met Wednesday and agreed to hold a study session that day at 5 p.m. followed by a special meeting at 7 p.m. when they will vote the decision.

The board will then send its recommendation and the proposal to the state Board of Education for action.

Letters and exhibits may still be sent to the county Department of Education, 75 Santa Barbara Rd., 94523. Public Information Officer Kay Ludolph has suggested that any information relating to unification be at the county schools' office before June 9.

Give and Take

That extra energy Popeye gets from spinach is no joke; dietitians say that spinach is exceptionally high in nutritional value. Starting in the 1920s, spinach received much publicity for its wealth of calcium and iron, along with Vitamins A and C. But research has found spinach is rich in oxalic acid, which prevents the calcium from being utilized by the body.

Memorial for ex-Amador athlete, scout

Steve Roth, memorial service Sunday

PLEASANTON — In a few days, Steve Roth would have graduated from high school and continued preparations for college and a career in the field of engineering.

A well-liked student during his days at Pleasanton School and Amador Valley High School, Steve was a track athlete and had earned Scouting's highest award, the Eagle Scout Award.

Those plans will only be a memory now, for Steve, who moved with his parents to Longmont, Colo. last August, was killed in an auto accident a week ago Wednesday while returning from a senior class picnic.

In Steve's memory, Bud Engel, a teacher of his at Amador Valley High, confidant and mentor in receiving his Eagle award, has organized a memorial service for Steve Sunday at 2 p.m. Site of the brief service will be the memorial monument in this community's Kottlinger Park.

Engel will officiate and Pastor Leonard Heath of the Valley Community Church will give the benediction.

All of Steve's friends and acquaintances are invited to attend the service. Engel said Steve's parents will fly out from Longmont, Colo., to be at the service.

A post-service reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Craig for friends of the family.

In recalling Steve's interests, Engel said many former classmates, members of the graduating class of 1977 at Amador Valley, had wanted to have a memorial service.

Roth had attended a senior class picnic near Longmont last Wednesday and was returning home when he apparently blacked out at the wheel and crashed. He died en route to the hospital. It is believed he had Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever and may have collapsed from the affects.

He is survived by two younger brothers, mother and stepfather, and his father, Bob Roth, who lives in the Los Angeles area.

Steve had been in scouting five years, being a member of Troop 901 sponsored by the Lions Club. The latter group will have a color guard at Sunday's ceremonies in Kottlinger Park, at Pico and Kottlinger.

He had been a pole vaulter on the Amador track team and won several awards for architectural drawing. Steve also had been nominated for the Naval Academy and Engel believes he may have recently accepted an appointment to the Air Force Academy.

Engel had been one of Steve's teachers, merit badge counselor and had participated in his Eagle Court of Honor June 12, 1976.

Chabot teachers ask salary hike

Salary proposals seeking a 12 per cent increase for the Chabot College Federation of Teachers and a 10.9 per cent hike for the Chabot College Teachers Association were presented to trustees of the South County Community College District earlier this week.

Rudolph Foglia, president of the Federation of Teachers chapter, said, "The 12 per cent adjustment in compensation would return the faculty of Chabot College to near parity with the Consumer Price Index for the Bay Area."

The federation chapter is seeking an increase of 6.5 per cent to reflect the increase in the Consumer Price Index from March 1976 to March of this year, and a hike of 5.5 per cent to reflect accrued losses from prior years when salary schedules did not reflect actual increases in the Consumer Price Index.

A letter from James Coovels, president of the Chabot College Teachers Association, requested the following:

1) An adjustment of the present certificated salary schedule to reflect the cost of living increase of 6.5 per cent.

2) Adoption of a part-time hourly pay schedule based on one-tenth of one per cent of the full-time certificated salary schedule.

3) An adjustment of 4.4 per cent to the salary schedule to be granted over a two-year period. This will have the effect, the letter indicates, of returning the salary schedule to the level of the 1971-73 period.

4) Anniversary increments to be granted for every three years service after reaching Step 15 on the salary schedule.

Trustees did not comment on the requests, but said they would take them under consideration.

In other business, the board postponed action on a proposed telephone information system utilizing cassette tapes to provide basic information automatically on registration and information, career center, community services, counseling, and other facets of the college's programs and services. The estimated cost is $8,700.

The board approved agreements with the Livermore Veterans Administration Hospital, Chabot Convalescent Hospital, Valley Memorial Hospital, Eden Hospital, and Kaiser Hospital to provide clinical facilities for the college's health science students.

Joe G. Morris was employed as maintenance and operations manager for the district. Morris, who holds a similar position in the Mountain View Unified School District, succeeds Dan Pilone, who has retired.

Close Senate vote

State tax relief bill gains ground

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s property tax relief bill survived a close Senate vote Thursday and was sent to the Assembly along with a rival measure backed by liberals and labor.

The action moved the bills closer to an Assembly-Senate conference committee, where lawmakers believe the real showdown will take place over the makeup of property tax legislation.

Brown's bill, carried by Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, cleared the upper house on a 27-8 vote — the bare two-thirds majority needed for passage in the 40-seat Senate.

The rival measure, by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, needed only a simple majority. It was approved without a vote to spare, 21-13.

The bills differ mainly in the amount of direct aid they would provide and their sources of revenue, but both authors said they planned to make changes in the Assembly that would alter dollar figures now in the bills.

Smith's bill, according to his analysis, would now provide $435 million in direct homeowner property tax relief and $140 million in renter assistance its first year, 1977-78.

But he said he would boost those totals to $500 million and $250 million because of a projected increase in the state's budget surplus.

Petris' bill, according to one analysis, would provide $660 million in property tax aid for homeowners and $465 million for renters in its first year, 1978-79.

Petris bill also aims more money at low-income homeowners than the Smith proposal. To help pay for the relief, the Petris bill would raise income taxes for the wealthiest six per cent of the state's taxpayers and limit capital gains allowances, especially for higher income persons.

Under the income tax provision, a family of four with an adjusted gross income of $50,000 would pay an additional $84 a year, but the increase would be greater for higher income groups.

Petris said, however, that he would cut the number of additional income tax brackets in the bill from nine to four and make up the difference by using up more of the budget surplus. Smith's bill contains no tax increase.

Ballot boxers

Like the sheep herder who cried "Wolf!" once too often, local government is in danger of killing off voter interest with a parade of "special elections" that range from the frivolous to the useless.

State legislators make this charade possible with a series of bills which compel local government to "go back to the people" each time taxes are to be raised above a hard minimum. That may be democratic, but it is not practicable.

Livermore tried not once but twice to gain voter approval of a tax override vaguely designed to beef up police and fire forces. The people emphatically turned down both requests.

Pleasanton ignored its neighbor's experience when it placed a similar proposal before the Pleasanton voters, a proposal that was founded less on established need than on the campaign promise of Councilman Frank Brandes. Turns out not even the fire fighters' union can support that 29-cent tax boost!

In San Ramon, voters are being asked to approve a healthy increase in their property taxes to provide "badly needed" expansion of classroom space. But none of that urgency has been evident in the school board's presentation of its case, and there is no broadly based campaign by parents who might have been expected to aggressively support the measure.

Local government cannot always avoid taking special tax issues to the people. State law has seen to that; and it's going to get worse in the new "Tax Relief" package now coming out of Sacramento.

But it also places a new kind of responsibility on school boards, city councils, special districts — and yes, local activist groups too — each of whom must exercise great care before placing yet another question on the ballot. Without evidence of broad support for each such proposal, we will turn off the voters, and make a mockery of the total election process.

Our recent record in that regard is not good. We are in for a ballot-box mess in 1978, if local leaders don't tighten up their act.

The Class of '27

There were only 25 Livermore High students in that graduating class of 50 years ago, but they were a spirited and busy group.

Appropos of the Class of '27 reunion, held recently at the Holiday Inn, Elliott Dopping has lent us "Green and Gold" yearbooks from 1925, '28 and '29. The handsome Dopping himself was destined to be a "ladies' man" and was always to be found "with the women," according to a listing in the Class of '29 yearbook.

Charmed with the energetic wit displayed by the few dozen students whose names and pictures appear over and over on the "Green and Gold" pages, we present herewith some tidbits from the yellowed pages of these tomes:

SCIENCE CLUB: Mr. Hartman, of Livermore, kindly gave an eagle to Miss King for her Biology classes to study. As it is not permissible for us to keep the bird caged, we are going to send him to Oakland to be stuffed.

FOOTBALL: In a seven-game season, Livermore High's finest trounced Emeryville twice, 19-6 both times; Pleasanton 33-0 and 43-0; Berkeley Reserves 14-0; Alumni 24-0 and were at last stopped by a "much heavier aggregation from Pittsburgh," 19-7.

CLASS WILL ('28): I, Marvel Dutton, leave my failing for Bugs to the Biology Class... I, Louis Ferrario, entrust to Carmelous Owens my charming ways with the fair sex... I, Bernice Nickerson, leave my school-girl complexion to Eva Gistafson. Use Palm-Olive soap only.

PROM: The Junior Prom, held on February 18, was a success and was enjoyed by all. The gymnasium was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns, parasols and plaques, presenting an attractive appearance. The School Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Graham, played several selections. Miss Wentz, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hampson, sang two songs. Thelma Ferrario, accompanied at the piano by Edna George, played two violin solos. The High School Orchestra furnished the dance music.

CALENDAR (1925): School opens

Aug. 17, closes June 11. Fifteen programs of various descriptions dotted the long school year, including assemblies on fire prevention (Oct. 16), Armistice Day (Nov. 11), American Education Week (Nov. 14, Thrift Week (Jan. 4), Old Ironsides (March 1), American literature (March 5), Arbor Day (March 12) and Mothers' Day, including a tea.

JOKES: Cliff Ralph: Hey, there. Don't you know you can't turn in the middle of the street?

Mr. Gibson: That's all right, I think I can make it.

Miss Nissen: How would you punctuate this sentence: Margaret coming down the street.

Arthur Burns: I'd make a dash after Margaret.

Helen Ennis: Miss Nissen, can any one be blamed for something he didn't do? Miss Nissen: No, I don't think so. Why? Helen: I didn't do my English.

ORCHESTRA: The school orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Graham, has made great strides in showing that the 45-minute period at the noon hour is well spent... Three members of the orchestra graduate this year but that leaves eight experienced members to start the orchestra next year... The orchestra this year (1928) is composed of: Thelma Ferrario, violin; Pearl Gilbert, violin; Herbert Brown, violin; Edna George, piano; Charles McCoy, cornet; Robert Branch, cornet; Graham Nissen, clarinet; Harry Lefever, saxophone; Joe Warner, saxophone; Edward George, trombone; Charles Keck, drums.

CLUBS: The Girls' League of the Livermore Union High School has monthly meetings every first Monday of the month... This day is also set aside as Mid-day Day. A contest was started to see which class could have the largest percentage of its girls wearing Middies.

Housing

"We're not poor people and this is not a ghetto," said the young woman whose little boy was playing in the kitchen on the floor. They were appearing on local television's Cable Connection show in a segment devoted to the public housing referendum in Dublin May 31.

The woman's remark is really the crux of the whole housing referendum, which is asking voters to authorize construction of 150 new units to replace the "temporary" World War II housing. Many of the people at Komandorski are not poor. Many, like the woman on camera, are young couples just starting out. Others are out of work temporarily or are divorced women who now find themselves head of the household, a fairly common situation in this Valley. These are the west Valley residents who need low and moderate income housing, the kind discussed in the Alameda County and Pleasanton general plans. There is no other way in the next few years to secure low and moderate income housing for the west Valley.

Some have said Komandorski is the wrong site to build new public housing. They say it is remote from the Dublin community. This overlooks the fact of nearby bus connections and the possibility of getting a bus stop at Komandorski. Others say the Pleasanton Housing Authority has no business continuing public housing in Dublin. The county should take care of Dublin. But the site is there and practically speaking that's all there really is available. If Pleasanton doesn't act on the site just beyond its borders, there won't be any public housing available. Not too long ago there was talk of Pleasanton annexing Dublin, which would seem to indicate that the two communities have mutual interests and public housing would seem to be one of them. Besides that, the money used to run the housing is federal money, not Pleasanton or county money. Dublin voters on May 31 won't be asked to raise their own property tax, merely to authorize the spending of federal dollars.

Another objection to a new Komandorski has been that scattered site housing in Pleasanton would be preferable. It probably would be preferable, but there are many roadblocks. One problem is to locate enough sites with available sewer connections. Then the housing authority would have to negotiate with property owners and if they didn't want to sell, the housing authority would have to use its power of eminent domain, something it is reluctant to do because it wants to be a good neighbor. Even if it went to that point, there remains the fact that costs would skyrocket if 150 units are

Energy frontiers

Chabot College - Valley Campus is moving in the field of solar energy to better inform and prepare its staff and members of the lay public on this "new frontier" of energy.

In this regard, a funding application has been sent off to the National Science Foundation for monies to conduct a series of workshops on the subject starting next January.

These Science for Citizens gatherings would take place in January, February and March (three of them in the latter month) at the Valley Campus. Each would deal with a specific topic, from funding necessary to successfully accomplish a solar energy project to the materials and construction costs.

The workshops would be jointly sponsored by Valley Campus and the National Science Foundation with Lawrence Livermore Laboratory contributing in-kind funds and personnel.

The latter is but another example of continuing cooperative efforts involving the scientific and school communities in this Valley.

It is a cooperative effort that stands to bring great dividends in the future. While it all may seem quite nebulous at present, the results of closer school - scientific community ties will be additional job opportunities and better - prepared technicians and engineers.

The subject of these prospective workshops came about after reading a wire service story last week that dealt with funding of solar energy projects in 33 states, including California.

We learned, after talking with Dr. Barbara Mertes, Dean of the Chabot - Valley Campus, that funding of the projects is quite distinct from the funding that Chabot - Valley is seeking.

The story dealt with approval of funding for construction — to help demonstrate how solar energy can heat and cool commercial buildings.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has said it will spend $12.6 million to partially fund the projects, with the average assistance being about $156,000.

Partial funding of 80 projects in the 33 states is actually the start of a second phase of a five-year demonstration program to show the uses of solar energy in heating and cooling non-residential structures. The new projects include offices, schools, hotels, fire and police stations, hospitals and libraries.

Closest Bay Area projects to receive funding are Renault and Handley Co., an industrial building in Santa Clara, and the food services building at Stanford University.

Homeowner taxes

Editor, The Times:
Subject: May 1, 1977 Editorial Titled — "HOMES TAXES".

It is rare when any newspaper speaks up for the middle income wage earners and homeowners. I thought the assessor was particularly high with his estimate of our home's value and I was quite distraught until I read Senator Petris' Comments.

I am tired of the cry "take from the rich to give to the poor," because more often than not the middle income homeowners are made to pay. And, who is to say a large family in Oakland uses less "public services" than a family of four in Pleasanton.

It is the political oriented battle cry such as that of Senator Petris that do no good but to infuriate people on both sides of the fence. We must all carry our fair share of the tax burden. Whenever the cry of "take from the rich to give to the poor" is heard we all now who pays, don't we, middle income homeowners.

Radioactive

Editor, The Times:
I think Congressman Pete Stark's concern about the safety of transporting any radio - active material is well founded. LLL can wait a few weeks until Sandia Corp. in Albuquerque has completed its tests on container to withstand being rocketed 200 feet into steel and concrete at 300 mph safely without breakage.

Remember the Titanic "the unsinkable ship"? The safe "Hindenberg"? The plane crash in the Azores recently? Human error. We have to do all we can to prevent these disasters. LLL should welcome Sandia's assistance in this and gladly await the safer results... and thank Pete Stark for making waves with ERDA and getting it done.

I know the public surely is concerned and appreciative of any and all efforts to make the transportation of radio - active materials as safe as humanly possible. even safer.

Save that water

Editor, The Times:
Here we sit in Pleasanton. We are blessed in so many ways; perhaps too many and we have become ungrateful. Are we oblivious to a certain "problem" or just senseless?

There has been a lot of talk lately about this "problem". It's not a minor inconvenience. It's not an academic subject to leisurely philosophize about. It's a drought! Yet a quick tour around Pleasanton reveals 4 people hosing down residential driveways, 2 fields of weeds being soaked, one condominium complex on Santa Rita Rd. watering their "thirsty" lawns again this week (and note this — it's 11:20 p.m. and they're doing it for the second night in a row! sneaky, huh?) and finally, 2 homeowners letting sprinklers run mostly into the gutter. This is just a "sprinkling" of what I saw...

We bought the new mattress — stiff as a board.

The IRS audit worked out fine, for the IRS. All challenged items now due and payable, plus interest.

Doctor Doom says we should eat less of this, lay off that. "It's the body's chemistry changing as we get a little older..."

Strawberry plants blossom forth in eager response to my tender loving care. But the berries shrivel on the vine. "Something to do with the fluorine in the city water system," man says. If berries shrivel from the water, makes me wonder about my stomach. Must ask Doctor Doom.

"Do you think we can take on that redecorating this year?" Lady of House asks. She asks the same question every year; usually about the same rooms. I am not one to move with undue haste, when it comes to laying out cash for luxuries.

Check with the IRS, I advise her. They handle all my cash.

All the world's a stage... Yes, and do you get the feeling someone has loosened up most of the boards? cut the ropes? turning off the lights?

This is not best of seasons for us players. There is uneasiness backstage. The star is in high dudgeon.

"Are we going to take a vacation this year?" she asks. All of her suggestions these days seem to relate to money. Outgoing.

There was that lovely week in Barstow, and points south and east, I remind her. Overnight in the Miracle City Motel.

"Is that supposed to last us all year?" she persists. There was a time, in our weekly frequency, when seven days vacation every other year was considered quite a luxury. Labor from Monday to Saturday, attend church socials on Sunday. Different church every Sabbath. Very ecumenical, and political. Life was never dull. But we never left town.

"I was wondering what chance we'd have of visiting the kids this year." She means the Australian branch. Lovely little family. Why on earth our boy couldn't have settled down on a Fresno ranch, married one of those nice little Fresnoes, I'll never know. Too late now.

Costs a king's ransom to reach Australia. Even if you fly with the peasants.

"It will be three years in November since our last trip there," she reminds me. Ah yes, and another grandchild is due, any day now. Grandmothers are convinced these things cannot occur without their presence... before, during, or immediately thereafter.

"I wonder if she's alright," is her standard concern. Usually asked when a letter arrives from Down Under. Letter writer assures us "everyone here is doing just fine!" But grandmothers do not trust letters. Have their own Australian vibes... "I just have the feeling things aren't going as well as they keep telling us..."

Things aren't exactly swimming along here at home, when you get right down to it. Carter's team has the African folk thinking dark (white?) thoughts. Sacramento is playing scrabble with our taxes. Even Billy C. has gotten a belly full... of the bad brew fer'n'ers are mixing up in Plains.

"I would give up on any chance of a favorable ruling from the IRS," our tax expert advises. He adds, needlessly, "After all, revenue is their middle name." I am not amused. I am broke. Outgo is exceeding ingo. Never would have plunged for the new mattress if I had known it was going to be one of those years.

"Suppose we put the interior decorating off for another year," she suggests, eagerly. "That way we could afford the trip to Australia... get there when the baby has arrived... the little mother will need us most."

Little Mother may not need us at all. But I need some sound financial advice. The money I had not planned to spend on decorating this year is the same cash I had not figured on laying out for the big trip, Down Under.

But she plays this little game... "What we save by not doing this we can now spend on doing that" sort of thing.

She is like our beloved Jerry Brown, on that score. Keep moving the shells around. The coin you never see is the coin you'll never miss.

I think we should first pay our overdue taxes, plus interest, and then see what's left after that.

It will not be much. Maybe we could float a loan. Using the new mattress as collateral. There's always a chance the banker will spring. But not for serts.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 24 and not the kind of man who picks up girls every night. I like to build good relationships and I genuinely like and respect women. What baffles me is that I'm always losing them to men who don't treat them nearly as well. I can afford to give women lots of special treats. I make a point of complimenting them and letting them know how I feel. Nothing seems to work. I hope I'm not a born loser. — J.B.

DEAR J.B.: I'm sure you're not a born loser — if there is such a thing. Your problems may merely be coincidence. If you have the strength and courage, you might try making special dates with these women, then ask them if they can explain.

Let them know that you're not picking a fight, challenging them, or asking for pity but that you're taking a personal inventory and are curious to see if there's a pattern.

It's possible to be too "nice," at least in paying compliments. Some people distrust compliments even if they come with genuine affection. It makes some feel guilty, as if they're not giving enough, and it makes others feel obligated. If a woman is not ready to commit herself, it may frighten her to be treated with such open generosity. She may feel you expect something she isn't prepared to give.

You may be too predictable for some women. According to Dr. Harold Greenwald, president of the International Academy of Psychologists in Marital and Family Therapy, basically, today's woman is looking for excitement. They get all the peace and security when they die, he says. They complain that their lives are dull. They want stimulation.

Shared interests and the ability to laugh, or better yet, giggle, with a man are important to most women. It usually means they can talk about almost anything honestly and openly, with each respecting the other's opinion.

If you can make women feel free and comfortable talking with you, don't worry. The right one will come along.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm concerned about my young daughter because she's a tomboy. My wife says I'm worrying over nothing and that it's just that I am old-fashioned and because I was 40 when we had our first child. I realize that's late and that's troubled me too. I want to give this child what she wants and I want her to be as proud of me when she grows up as I am of her. Is it wrong to direct a little girl into activities that are more suitable for females than the rough and tumble things that attract little boys? — P.K.

DEAR P.K.: I think your wife is correct in thinking you're worrying needlessly about your daughter's play preferences and attitudes you label "tomboyish." Little girls, when left to their own devices, are not the fragile, passive, retiring creatures that they have been pictured to be. Usually, when they do behave in this manner it's because some adult has made it clear that this is the way he or she wishes the child to behave. In other words, most little girls seem about as interested in climbing trees and digging caves as little boys.

This shouldn't be considered abnormal behavior and girls who are not inhibited from following their natural patterns are more apt to be secure and successful women, whether they enter a profession or become wives and mothers. In fact, women who allow both their male and female facets full expression generally are better able to cope with life.

Don't worry about your daughter's following in some rigid sex role pattern. Encourage her to be herself and let her know she has your full support. Incidentally, late fathers prove to be excellent fathers.

Dr. Lamb

Treatment for food mass

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem with my stomach — three golf-ball-sized phytobezoars to be exact. I am not mentally ill — I hope — so have not ingested any hair or other matter.

After my gastroscopy in January 1975 I ate anything that a normal person would eat. No solution to my problem is forthcoming other than surgery. I cannot survive another operation. The surgeon has said so and I know so. I'm 5 feet 7 and weigh 90 pounds. I'm a widow of 60 and live in an apartment with two cats and hold down a full time job.

Do you know of any medicine I might take that would dissolve these things? Right now I'm afraid to eat, period. Please mostly.

DEAR READER — I suspect that the phytobezoars were formed from eating oranges. This problem occurs in a number of people after having an operation on the stomach — or cutting the vagus nerve to the stomach. They are masses of food fibers that are not digested. You are fortunate that these masses are in the stomach, and not obstructing the small intestine.

Among the foods that cause these are oranges (but not orange juice) figs, coconuts, apples, green beans, sauerkraut, berries, potato peel and brussels sprouts. These foods should all be avoided after surgery on the stomach.

The oranges may be chewed but the fibrous sacks refill with digestive juices and pectin to form masses. You might have the same problem with grapefruit.

Those in the stomach can be broken up and washed out. You may be surprised to learn that Adolph's Meat Tenderizer has been used to treat these.

Your doctors may be interested in a report on these and treatment by Dr. R.R. Buchholz of the VA Center in Temple, Tex. It is in Resident and Staff Physician (March 1976). In normal people who have had no stomach surgery these are quite rare, and are usually caused by persimmons.

Since your surgery was for ulcers I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-5, Ulcers — Duodenal, Stomach. Others who want this general information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW IS MY NOSE ABLE TO SMELL?"

A. YOU SMELL BY MEANS OF SPECIAL NERVE CELLS LOCATED IN THE BACK OF THE NOSE, WHICH ARE STIMULATED BY ODOR MOLECULES IN THE AIR.

PATRICIA STEWART
SANTA CRUZ, CA

In addition to forming a passageway for the air we breathe, the nose is a special organ of the sense of smell.

We smell by means of special nerve cells located high up in the back of the nose.

A smell, or odor, is caused by tiny particles called molecules, which are given off by the object smelled. These odor particles float through the air as a gas or vapor.

A rose, for instance, has a distinct odor. Its pleasant smell comes from a fragrant oil that it produces in its petals. The oil evaporates into the air as a vapor.

By sniffing, you carry the delicate odor vapor up to where your smell nerve cells are located.

Some of the odor particles dissolve in the liquid mucus which keeps the inside of your nose moist. When the moistened odor particles touch the sense-of-smell cells they send a "message" of the odor to the smell center of the brain.

And your brain tells you that you're smelling a rose!

By Oswald & James Jacoby
As the poet said: "A little learning is a dangerous thing."
South had just heard about the principle of restricted choice. This didn't get him to that six-spade contract, but a faulty application of the principle led to his defeat.

He won the heart lead in dummy and played dummy's ace of trumps. East followed small and West dropped the 10.

Poor South assumed that this was a case for use of the principle of restricted choice. He led dummy's last trump and finessed his nine. West won with the jack and led a club to his partner's ace.

Why didn't this principle apply here?

Because it only applies when the defender must play one of equal high cards. If West were placed under compulsion to play small from jack-10-small then the second round finesse would be correct. The principle would apply. As you see, West was under no such compulsion and had played the 10 instead of the five.

Rev. Johnson retires

It will be an active retirement taken up by the Rev. Milton C. Johnson as he retires from his full-time parish ministry as pastor of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livermore, after 36 years of parish ministry. His resignation will become effective as of June 30, but he delivered his farewell sermon to the parish on May 15. After attending the Pacific Southwest Synod Convention in Los Angeles, May 18 to 22, he will enjoy a five week vacation before launching into his vibrant retirement.

He describes his future as "doing work for the church at large, The Lutheran Church of America, in a two year program, 'Strength For Missions.' He will also be working with congregations on Christian stewardship."

Pastor Johnson will also fill in for ministers and serve as a consultant to congregations on parish ministry. During his years at Holy Cross in Livermore, Pastor Johnson has been active in the community in a variety of ways. Through the Valley Covenant Ministry Council, he participated in many ecumenical services. He was on the original board for the volunteer bureau for the valley, which was not church related. He also served on the Citizen's Advisory Board for the local mental health clinic several years ago.

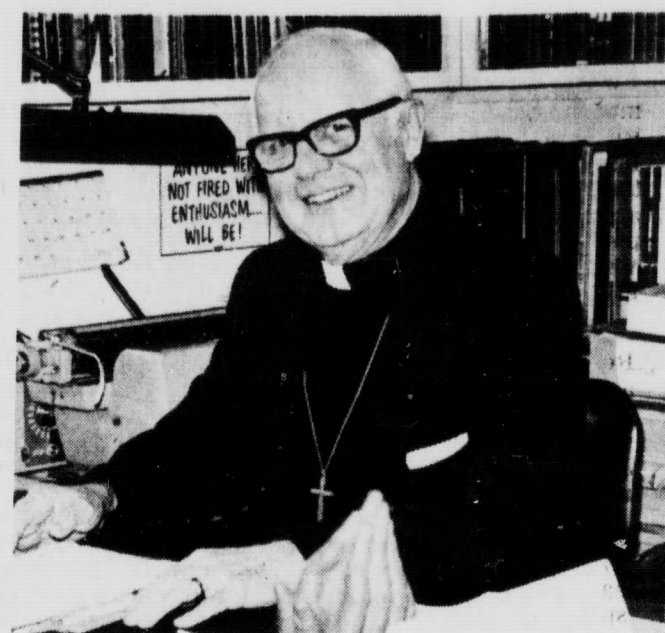

In the synod, he served as Chairman of Commission for Parish Ministries and on the Commission assisting parishes in programs and work. The minister's original home was Kenosha, Wisconsin, the son of Lutherans of Danish descent. He attended St. Mary's Lutheran Church, named for St. Mary's Cathedral in Denmark. He initially decided to enter the ministry when he celebrated his confirmation in May 1926. Consequently, he planned his education toward the ministry, graduating from the University of Wisconsin with a BA degree, and from Northwestern Lutheran Theological Seminary at St. Paul with a Master of Divinity degree. He was ordained June 22, 1941 at Mansfield, Ohio. He was on the national staff of the Lutheran Church in America for four years as Assistant Director for Stewardship. He defines stewardship as the practice of the Christian religion, a commitment "which relates itself basically to one's response and responsibility to the Christian religion."

The pastor and his wife Ruth are the parents of four children, who have all "flown the coop" in the words of the minister. When asked what his advice would be to young people who might be interested in joining the ministry, Pastor Johnson analyzed the qualities of character needed. He said that many young people are now interested in religion "in a searching way" to answer personal needs. "When we talk about ministry today, being a minister is to serve the Lord wherever we are and whatever occupation or position of employment we have... whatever it might be."

"If we want to talk about serving the church in full-time capacity, a person must have a strong sense of commitment and be utterly faithful to the calling, the willingness to go beyond the call of duty. 'I've been grateful for the opportunity of serving. I'm appreciative of the congregation and its people, and those who endured with me and my shepherding all these years.'"

Methodists
The name "Methodist" is thought to refer to the methodical manner in which members of the original movement performed engagements which a sense of Christian duty induced them to undertake. It was first applied to Charles and John Wesley and several other Oxford students in 1729. The movement was brought to America in 1760 by emigrants from Ireland.

Livermore Unitarian Fellowship seeks land and building

LIVERMORE — Like the boll-weevil in the song, the Unitarian Fellowship is "looking for a home." The religious body, consisting of 40 contributing members, is interested in buying either a completed building, the land to build on, or some existing building that could be converted to use by the congregation.

Susan Mayall, President of the Fellowship, said they would prefer it to be somewhere in the Livermore-Pleasanton-Dublin area, and it should seat 100 to 150 people, have classroom space for Sunday School, and playground areas. They would like it bigger than their present membership requires, to allow for expansion.

Unitarian roots go back a long way, according to Mrs. Mayall, back to the reformation in Europe and to Rumania and Hungary where it was founded. Unitarians were in England at the end of the 1700's, and became a strong force in New England. It is now the dominant religion in that region.

The emphasis of the Unitarians is on the Unity of God, as opposed to the emphasis being on the Trinity. Some of the oldest churches in America are Unitarian, such as King's Chapel in Boston, formerly Episcopalian, but which became Unitarian in the 1700's.

The course of Unitarianism in the U.S. was one of liberalization. Many of the early abolitionists in New England were Unitarians. They are tolerant of, and believe there is good in most major religions of the world. There's a lot of involvement with social issues among individual members, though not as a group particularly, individuality being a character trait often associated with Unitarians.

After World War II there was a big boom in Unitarianism, and fellowships, being one informal group than churches, were started. Although associated with the Unitarian Universalist Association, there is no hierarchy; each church, fellowship, and each individual member is independent of higher authority within the organization.

Fellowships function like churches, but without a minister. Speakers are invited from within the membership, or from the community. A minister is not required. There is no formal leader.

However, the president is empowered to perform weddings. Mrs. Mayall has officiated at five weddings in the past year, her term of office. She says many people prefer Unitarian weddings because they can write their own vows, and some people seem to feel they're more friendly, with more feeling.

The Livermore Fellowship holds workshops by various experts in interpersonal communications. They have four hour workshops to help people handle their own problems and to identify problems in others.

Strong individualists, many Unitarians like to evolve their own beliefs, but are basically religious people, explains Mrs. Mayall.

The question remains to be answered: Can all these individualists agree on a property for their new home?

Spring of Joy

DUBLIN — Spring of Joy is an exciting group of eight young born-again Christians who have dedicated their lives to the spreading of God's word through the medium of contemporary music.

Conceived in 1974, the group is noted for its variety of musical styles and its versatility. A dynamic lead singer with a full vocal back-up, a full rhythm and brass section all make up the unique sound that has become characteristic of Spring of Joy.

The program that Spring of Joy offers is an uplifting and refreshing way to share the love of Christ with one another. The content of the program is meant to be instructive, informative, and thought provoking without denominational overtones.

Although many hours are spent in rehearsal to insure a quality musical presentation, the emphasis is on the message. This makes the group appropriate for church functions, youth activities, college programs, camps and banquets, according to their press releases.

The entire purpose of Spring of Joy is to share through songs and personal testimonies, what Christ has done in their lives, and then to offer this same relationship to others.

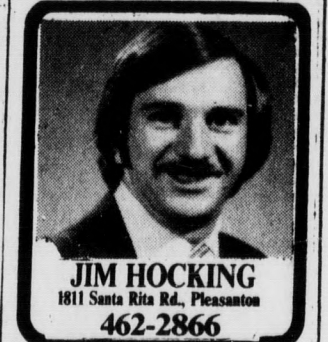

Spring of Joy, a group of born-again Christians, who spread God's word through the medium of contemporary music, will be featured at the Fish Factory Youth Service of Valley Christian Center, at 7 p.m., Saturday, May 28, at 7400 San Ramon Rd., Dublin. The public is invited.

Forever the bridesmaid

On Sports

Glenn Malcolm, the Chabot College track and field coach, must be getting tired of coming so close and yet missing the top prize.

Malcolm, in his 14th year at the Hayward campus, has seen his Gladiators finished second in the Golden Gate Conference dual-meet and league meet standings four straight seasons.

And what's more. The first place team the past four years has been San Jose City College, two-time California State champion.

The Gladiators could have finished first in any other Northern California conference and most of the Southern California leagues, too. But instead they have to compete against a track dynasty.

Tom Smith

This year could have been different.

San Jose had lost Olympic Silver Medalist Millard Hampton to graduation and UCLA and Chabot had apparently put together a powerful, well-balanced dual-meet squad led by former Skyline High ace Mike McRae.

McRae, probably the finest all-around athlete in the junior college track ranks this season, is one of the premier long and triple jumpers in the state. He is also an outstanding sprinter, as his 100-meter victory in the Northern California Championships last week attests to.

The Gladiators had other outstanding athletes like 800-meter frosh star Dave Emery and miler Tom Smith.

However, in the end it was San Jose's superior depth and overall talent which won out in the dual-meet race and the conference meet.

San Jose takes most of its athletes from the Mt. Hamilton League on the South Bay city's east side.

The MHL has built up a reputation in recent years as the toughest prep track league in Northern California. Last season it could have been the best in the entire state.

Thus, San Jose generally draws a strong nucleus of sprinters, triple jumpers and middle-distance runners each year. And that is what's needed to win titles. Sprinters and jumpers can run the two relays and the points pile up in those events.

Even with Hampton gone the Jaguars still managed to put together the fastest electronically-timed 400-meter junior college relay team in history. And with three freshman part of the quartet

What makes matters even worse for Chabot is the fact most of San Jose's other athletes are also freshmen, including ace triple jumper Peter Moreno, who upset McRae at the NorCal meet when Mike failed to qualify in his "favorite event".

Still, it was basically a successful season for the Gladiators.

Besides the achievements of McRae high jumper Bob Peterson showed rapid improvement and qualified for tomorrow night's state meet in Bakersfield.

Emery also showed a lot of improvement. However, it should have been expected. Dave finished third in the prep state meet last year in a photo-finish.

He took third in the 800-meters last week with a 1:53.82 clocking and could have gone even faster.

"I think Emery can go under 1:52.0 soon," stated Malcolm. "He'll have to be to place at state. A 1:51.0 is within his reach."

Emery, Peterson (who has done 7-feet) and McRae in the 100 and long jump are the only Chabot athletes who qualified for the state meet.

"I think we can finish about 10th," Malcolm frankly admitted. "We didn't qualify that many athletes and it's hard to score higher than that unless you have a large number of stars."

The best Chabot has done under Malcolm's rein was sixth in 1969.

Needless to say, if McRae has qualified in the triple jump and Smith in the 1,500 meters the Gladiators' chances to beat that placing would be excellent this year.

McRae apparently competed in too many events leading up to the NorCal meet as he pulled up in the 200 and his triple jump mark was over three feet under his best of 53-4.

Smith started out fast in the 1,500 meters in the NorCal meet but faded to 12th.

"Tom was concentrating too much on his time and not on the race itself," admitted Malcolm.

So it appears there will be slim pickings for the Glads as far as team points go at the state meet. McRae is a good bet to win the long jump and place in the 100. Emery and Peterson might place also.

But it still wouldn't be enough to compete with the likes of Grossmont, Pasadena, Alameda and of course, San Jose.

All of these teams have strength in the sprints and relays, plus depth to boot.

Even if McRae won the 100 and long jump and both Emery and Peterson placed, the Gladiators would still be hard-pressed to score 30 points. That would probably get them no better than fifth or sixth, which would still be a notable achievement but not as high as the Glads had hoped for at the beginning of the season.

But Chabot is getting used to that.

After finishing in the runner-up spot in GGC standings so long the Gladiators will have to settle for all the individual glory they can get at the state meet and forget about team standings.

At least for this season.

After all, you can't compete against a legendary dynasty.

76ers win brawl-plagued tilt

MV eliminated in frustrating 1-0 loss

"I hate to lose that way," said an obviously upset George Cockerton after his Monte Vista Mustangs dropped a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to Pacific in the first round of the North Coast Section 3A baseball championship in San Leandro yesterday.

A highly questionable balk call and a very close call on a double by Dave Mendez in the third inning resulted in the only run of the game. Even though Monte Vista could only muster one hit off of Pacific's Mike Casey the game might have gone on forever if not for the umpire's intervention in that fatal third inning.

With one out in the third inning Randy Kerr started it all for the Vikings with a softly hit single to right field. Monte Vista pitcher Brad Miller then took the sign from catcher Mike Cockerton with the ball in his hand near his stomach. The home plate umpire ruled a balk, stating that the pitcher must take his sign in a set position with the ball either at his side or behind his back.

Needless to say this highly technical interpretation brought on some heated discussion between the men in blue and the Monte Vista team. Miller, clearly upset, then lost his control briefly and a passed ball allowed Kerr to go to third.

Mendez came to the plate with two outs and Miller quickly fell behind on the count at 3-1. Despite having an open base and a .265 hitter up next the Mustangs elected to pitch to Mendez, who hit .400 for the year and he hit a ground ball just fair down the left field line to score the game's only run.

And Monte Vista fans were not too happy about that call either. "That ball was a foot foul," said Cockerton after the game.

Miller only allowed one other Viking to reach second base but the damage was done. Casey, a slightly built right hander with an excellent slider allowed just one base hit—a single by Mike Cockerton to lead off the third—and just two walks.

Cockerton's single started the only serious Monte Vista threat as the slow moving catcher went all the way to third on Ted Helgans' sacrifice. But with a one ball count on Bill Howard the Mustangs tried a suicide squeeze. Unfortunately for East Bay Athletic League fans Casey fired a fastball at least two feet above Howard's head and Cockerton was tagged out trying to score.

Pacific will play the winner of today's Hayward-Washington contest Saturday at 4 p.m. contest Saturday at 4 p.m.

Giants edge Reds

SAN FRANCISCO — Oh, what a night.

Any of the 5702 persons who waited out last night's 6-5 San Francisco Giants win over the Cincinnati Reds could have expressed themselves with those words after the three hour debacle.

In order:

Charlie Finley made his first appearance at his rivals ball park, John Montefusco sprained his left ankle and won't know until later today how long he'll be out of action and finally, mercifully, Terry Whitfield's fourth single of the game brought home Vic Harris from third with the go-ahead run in the bottom of the eighth.

For the second day in a row, the Giants got the drop on Cincy.

Derrell Thomas started it with a lead-off single to right in the bottom of the first. He reached second on a hit and run ground out by Darrell Evans and scored on Terry Whitfield's two out ground single past short.

The Count managed to retire the first five Reds before George Foster drilled a single inside third and, two pitches later, Cesar Geronimo drove his third home run of the year into the football seats beyond the right field wall.

Suddenly behind, the rattled Montefusco walked Dave Concepcion on four pitches and watched him steal second before retiring Nolan, and the Reds, on a tricky liner to center.

In their half, the Giants evened things, at the expense of their starting battery.

Driessen flipped to Nolan covering the bag, but the toss was high and Sadek was safe, Foli going to third. Montefusco followed and dropped a successful, but fateful, bunt down the first base line.

The Count was retired, Nolan to second baseman Joe Morgan in a bang-bang play at first and, in the tangle of feet, Montefusco hit the bag wrong and wrenched his left ankle, an injury which forced him out of the game.

He was taken to the Palo Alto Medical Clinic where he was X-rayed and examined by Doctor Okley Hewitt.

The Reds treated reliever Terry Cornutt little better. He set down Pete Rose and Ken Griffey to start the third, but Morgan followed with his sixth homer, also into the unused right field seats.

Again, San Francisco matched the run in its half.

Bill Madlock led off with a double into the Reds bullpen and moved to third on a foul out to the right field corner by Whitfield. He scored when Willie McCovey, again producing without his fabled power, blooped a check swing single into right.

And again, Cincy took the lead back. Driessen walked to lead off the fourth and Cornutt accorded him perhaps more respect than his eight stolen bases called for. Cornutt tried to pick Driessen off, and failed, eight times.

Finally throwing to the batter, Cornutt gave up a run scoring souble to Foster, 4-for-6 in the first 13 innings of the mini-series with his old mates.

If you're scoring at home, that made it 4-3 Reds. At least, for as long as it took four Giants to bat in the bottom of the inning. Foli led off with a sinker that glanced off center fielder Geronimo's glove for a double. Again with two outs, Thomas lined a single to center and Foli, who'd gone to third on a ground out, scored.

PHILADELPHIA — Playmaker Henry Bibby contributed 15 points and six assists as the Philadelphia 76ers built an 18-point halftime lead and then coasted to a brawl-filled 107-89 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Thursday night in their National Basketball Association championship series.

A near-riot was precipitated with 4 minutes, 52 seconds left in the final period when Philadelphia's 6-foot-11½ Darryl Dawkins, who weighs 245 pounds, squared off first with Portland's Bob Gross and then with the Trail Blazers' 6-9, 218-pound Maurice Lucas. Dawkins and Lucas were expelled from the game after a dozen security guards eventually cleared the floor of players and spectators.

Doug Collins scored 27 points and Julius Erving 20 as the 76ers took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series, which continues Sunday afternoon and next Thursday night in Portland.

The 76ers exploded in the second period, building an 18-point bulge, 61-43, at halftime. They shot 54.1 percent from the floor to an atrocious 22.2 percent for the Western Conference-champion Blazers in the first half.

Portland was forced by the pressing Philadelphia defense to take shots from the perimeter and made only five field goals in the second quarter.

Philadelphia had an 11-point margin three times in the second quarter, the last at 49-38, with 3:31 left in the half. The Sixers then outscored the Blazers 12-5 to the end of the half, unleashing a devastating fast break.

Bill Walton and Lucas, the Blazers' top scorers, lead after four early ties on a 17-footer by Bibby. They boosted it to five points, 15-10, with 6:52 left in the opening period, but Portland whittled it to one point in the next 52 seconds on a tap-in and an 18-foot jumper by Lucas.

Philadelphia got its lead back to five points three times, but the persistent Trail Blazers reduced the 76er lead to one point again each managed just one basket in Portland's futile second period.

Portland broke fast in the third period, outscoring Philadelphia 8-4 and reducing the 76ers' lead to 65-51. But the Blazers couldn't cut into the margin any further and wound up only one point better off at the end of the three periods, trailing 81-64.

The Sixers took a 10-8 on an 18-foot jumper by Walton, with 1:24 remaining. The Sixers erupted for five straight points on a 20-footer by Erving, a Collins' free throw and Steve Mix' 20-foot bank shot to lead 31-25 at the end of the period.

Philadelphia shot 55 percent from the field to 44.4 for Portland in those first 12 minutes.

Bulldog hurler ends Wolves' NCS hopes

PITTSBURG — Alhambra High baseball coach Glen Gierke's pre-game decision of starting pitcher was easy in Thursday's North Coast Section 3A baseball playoffs at Los Medanos College.

He could have sent left-handed pitcher Vince Albanese, hurler of two no-hit games, to face San Ramon High's Wolves, or he could have sent out ace pitcher Joe Balderston, owner of a 10-0 Foothill Athletic League record over two years.

He sent Balderston, who then proceeded to muzzle the Wolves, 4-1, in the first-round playoff game striking out 10 along the way.

"It was an easy decision to make," said Gierke. "I know Joe can pitch on one day's rest, where it takes a little longer for Vince to recover. This way, I've got two good pitchers."

"Offensively, I thought we were a little shaky," he added. "We should have played better there. There were some scoring opportunities we should have taken advantage of and didn't."

The biggest opportunity came in the Alhambra third inning when Dave

Bishop had singled home Rick Seib, and San Ramon starter Guy Houston had walked Joe Lucero with two out to load the bases.

But Houston, who had given up six walks at that juncture (seven total) induced Kevin Kingsley to ground out ending the threat.

Another threat was ended rather abruptly in the fifth when San Ramon first baseman Paul Fisch speared Mark Fuller's liner to right and tagged Rick Seib who had singled homer Marcus Wright.

SR coach Rick Steen was nonetheless happy with the way his team played: "What it came down to was basic baseball. The team that hit and made fewer mistakes would win."

"Alhambra is a good club. They take advantage of a lot of teams," he added. We have nothing to be ashamed of. We ran well, played good defense and bunted well off a real good ball club."

"Alhambra got here because they won 18 straight ballgames. You can't take that away from them — they do everything well. But we'll be back. Once you get the taste of it, you want to come back. And we will."

Marcus Wright not only loved the taste of the play-offs, but also the way pitches looked to him, finishing with a three-for-four day to pace Alhambra.

The Wolves' only run came in the fourth, when Greg Bishop singled to left and came home on Charley Brice's single to tie the game at 1-1.

But the Bulldogs came back in their fifth when Seib singled home Wright, who doubled leading off the inning.

Alhambra advances to the championship game at LMC Saturday at 4 p.m. meeting the winner of today's De LaSalle-Clayton Valley game at 4 p.m.

Poke stars, Gangnuuss lead valley hopes

BERKELEY — It's all for the individual glory when the North Coast Section Meet of Champions trials begin at 1:30 in Edwards Stadium here today.

There will be no team scoring in the two-day affair. So all the competitors will be striving for a berth in the state high school track meet next weekend at UCLA.

Several valley athletes figure among the favorites in their respective events and should qualify easily for the state meet.

The top four in each event of the varsity and girls' competition will advance to the state meet.

Three valley athletes have solid chances at taking first in the finals tomorrow.

Livermore High high jumper Bob Churchill, just a junior, has done 6-10 once and 6-8 twice to rank second behind Ruben Edwards of Terra Linda. Edwards has cleared 6-11 this season.

However, Churchill just barely missed at seven feet last week in the 4-A meet and could clear that height this weekend with the intense competition.

Other top high jumpers in the field include Dave Sheltraw of Mission San Jose (6-9½), Al Sullivan of Sonoma (6-8), and Gary Branch of American (6-8 and second to Churchill last week).

The other two valley athletes who have good shots at a first-place medal are Dublin hurdler Chuck Gangnuuss and Livermore miler-two-miler Cheri Williams.

Gangnuuss is the defending NCS champion in the 120-yard high hurdles but should face tough competition from DeAnza's Will Patterson and Ton Ameron of Pittsburg.

Both Patterson and Ameron beat Chuck in the 4-A finals last week. However, Gangnuuss had a poor start and was unable to

Lightweight shot to death

PHILADELPHIA — Tyrone Everett, who fought his way off the streets to become the No. 1 junior lightweight boxing contender, was shot to death Thursday.

Everett was found alone in the second-floor bedroom of a house in south Philadelphia. He died minutes later at a hospital from a bullet wound in the face.

Police said they had no clues and no weapon was found.

The 25-year-old boxer, a flashy dresser who loved the ladies and money, lost only one of his 37 professional bouts, a controversial split decision to World Boxing Council champion Alfredo Escalera last November.

A rematch was scheduled for June in Puerto Rico.

When Everett was 14, his mother moved him and his four brothers to south Philadelphia to escape the city's gang wars.

But Everett still managed to get in his licks, bloodying enough noses to become the most respected kid on the block.

Across the street from the Everett home lived a boy named Billy, who said sometime he would be a prize fighter. To emphasize his point, Billy displayed a shiny trophy he won in a boxing tournament at a boy's club.

Everett asked Billy for directions and his mother for $5 to cover the first month's club dues. He told her he was going swimming.

But Everett soon lost interest, getting whipped by a 16-year-old boxer named Jerome Artis, and drifting back to the streets.

One day Jimmy Arthur, a trainer at the club, spotted Everett on a corner. "Jimmy may have saved me from who knows what that day," the fighter would recall.

State championship

Upstart Vikes play Cerritos

Upstart Diablo Valley College, a team that didn't figure to be in business this late in the season, will be "shooting for the moon" in a best-of-three game baseball series beginning at 2:30 today on the DVC diamond.

It's the California Community College Division (Large conference) title up for grabs and the last roadblock in the path of DVC's first-ever state championship in the great American pastime is Cerrito College, a dominant power in Southern California in recent years.

Diablo Valley College takes a 25-15 record into the final showdown at home after upsetting San Mateo, the Golden Gate Conference titlist, in the recent Northern California section playoffs.

While all this was going on last weekend, Cerritos swept through the Southern California playoffs with four straight wins to improve its season mark to 33-7, impressive to say the least.

Still, the Vikings do not hold the opposition in awe, despite the fact that the Falcons are rated overwhelming favorites to notch their fourth state title in five years. The Vikes are fresh off another underdog situation which they defied in taking San Mateo twice in the section playoffs at San Mateo.

Cecaci compares the powerful Cerritos club to San Mateo and Sacramento City, both finalists in the section playoffs. "We held both of them down and I don't see any reason why we can't hold down Cerritos providing we play heads up ball."

The Falcons batted .340 in their conference and did even better in Southern California championships, tacking up a combined effort of .355.

Eric Snider, who picked up a pair of wins in the San Mateo showdown, will get the starting call for DVC in the title series. The sophomore righthander from Pleasant Hill has a season record of 14-3 after posting 9-2 in the conference. His earned-run average for the season is 2.38 and he has completed 13 games.

Lefthander Bob Flynn represents the other half of DVC's 1-2 pitching punch. Flynn finished strong and posted an important victory over San Mateo in the playoffs. He will start the second game against Cerritos at 11 a.m. Saturday.

A third game, if necessary, is scheduled to start approximately 20 minutes after completion of game No. 2. Greg Blake and Steve Laughery make up DVC's bull pen corps for relief pitching.

The Falcons are expected to start Rick Costello, Snider's counterpart who takes over the role of designated hitter when not on the mound. Costello twirled a pair of seven hitters in winning the first and fourth games over Northwestern (8-2) and Long Beach (3-2) in the Southern California playoffs. He drove in the winning runs in the championship game and had four runs-batted-in for the series.

Other "hot" hitters for Cerritos in the playoffs were left fielder Mike Sammons, who batted an even .500 (8 for 16); first baseman Mike Carpenter, .412, and Jim Wilson, .400.

The Vikings were led in the Norcal playoffs by catcher Jim Saunders, .400 (6 for 15); outfielder Gerald Price, .357 (5 for 14) and outfielder John Raeside, .313 (5 for 16).

With a large contingent of followers coming up from Southern California, a capacity crowd is expected to take in the state champion series, not to mention a host of major league scouts checking talent for the upcoming June draft.

Probable starting lineups and conference batting averages:

CERRITOS — Keith Lupo (.299), CF; Mike Carpenter (.368), 1b; Jim Wilson (.403), 3b; Rick Costello (.319), p-DH; Jesse Baez (.308) C; Mike Sammons (.364) CF; Dave Schuler (.304), RF; Tim Krauss (.462) 2b; Ron Wilkinson (.273) SS.

DIABLO VALLEY COLLEGE — Jim Flores (.323) 2b; John Raeside (.269) CF; Gerald Price (.276), LF; Mike Donnelly (.367) 1b; Jim Saunders (.300) C; Willie McGee (.286) RF; Eric Snider (.244) p-DH; Dick Williams (.215) or Kevin Olson (.095) 3b; Cliff Wherry (.270) SS.

In addition to leading his team in batting, Donnelly also drove in 21 runs for another club high mark.

Dorsett signs for million

DALLAS — Tony Dorsett, the explosive University of Pittsburgh All-America running back, became the first million-dollar player for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League

Thursday. "I am happy it is over," Dorsett said as he signed the contract in the Pittsburgh office of his attorney, Harvey Eger. Agent Mike Trope and Dallas Cowboy vice president Gil Brandt watched. Neither the Cowboys nor Dorsett would discuss terms of the contract. But Trope said Dorsett "got what I consider a fair market value. Tony got an excellent contract and the Cowboys got an excellent player."

Earlier, Trope had negotiated a multi-year, $1.2 million contract for Southern California star Ricky Bell with Tampa Bay.

"I am not going to say that Dorsett's contract is above or below Bell's contract," Trope said, adding that the five-year figure for the duration of the contract "was in the neighborhood."

The Cowboys drafted Dorsett after a deal with the Seattle Seahawks that involved, as Cowboy general manager Tex Schramm put it, "a handful of draft choices."

Trope said the Heisman Trophy winner was "ecstatic" in reaching an agreement with the Cowboys.

In a telephone interview Thursday, Dorsett said when he was drafted he was "overwhelmed with the idea of playing for the Cowboys. Now that it is official, it is all that much more pleasing."

Dorsett said he hoped his speed would help him get a starting job with the team next season.

"I have seen the Cowboys," he said. "They have excellent personnel and it is not going to be easy. I have to go through a learning process. They have a very sophisticated offensive system."

"But if they want a running back, maybe that will help me. I don't know what they are looking for in the way of offense, but I think I can contribute something."

"I am optimistic." The Cowboys have lacked a breakaway running back for some years. Their longest run from scrimmage last year was 24 yards. — by Associated Press

Something big for A's fans?

OAKLAND — Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, has scheduled a Friday news conference which he says will be "the most important press conference the A's have held since they came to Oakland."

"It's top secret, the only one who knows what it's about is me," he added Thursday. "But I can tell you that it is going to be received most enthusiastically by sports fans in the area."

If, in fact, no one but Finley knows the subject matter, that would rule out announcement of another trade by the A's owner who has dealt off such players as Phil Garner, Claudell Washington, Mike Torrez and Stan Bahnsen this spring.

Something to enthuse the area's baseball fans obviously is needed. The A's have drawn only 153,610 fans for their first 22 home dates of the season.

The A's were off Thursday, in Cleveland where they open a series with the Indians Friday night.

Finley said he had not talked to Manager Jack McKeon about first baseman Dick Allen's displeasure with some of McKeon's moves.

After Allen was removed from the lineup in the 10th inning of Wednesday night's 6-5 victory at Toronto, he told baseball writer Tom Weir of the Oakland Tribune, "I've lost all respect for him (McKeon). He's making moves just to be making moves."

McKeon said he wanted his best defensive catcher, Jeff Newman, in the game and moved Earl Williams to first since Williams would be coming to bat in the 11th if Toronto tied the score.

"Sometimes you do something in a guy's best interests and you end up hurting his feelings. You can't worry about that," added McKeon, saying he also wants to rest Allen as much as possible.

"I've got to agree 100 percent with my manager," said Finley. "I don't think Mr. Allen understands why that was necessary." Friday's news conference will be at 11 a.m. (PDT) at Oakland's Edgewater Hyatt House hotel.

make up ground on the other hurdlers.

Chuck has the sections' fastest time with a 14.1 clocking while Patterson, Amerson and Tony Barton of Piner of Santa Rosa each have 14.2s.

Gangnuss won the 330-yard low hurdles last week and could win that event easily tomorrow if he gets a good start. In the 4-A meet Chuck ran a 37.8 but was in fourth place at the turn before pulling away from the field.

Patterson, has done a 38.0 and Amerson a 37.9. The Pittsburgh athlete finished second to Gangnuss last week while Patterson took third. Mark White of Richmond could also be a factor off his 38.4.

Gangnuss is also entered in the 440-yard relay along with teammates Mark O'Hara, Jim Boulware and Jon Batchelor.

The Gael quartet has clocked a 43.1 this season, fourth best in the section. Pittsburgh has run 42.8 as had Kennedy of Richmond. Antioch has also done a 42.8 but the Gaels defeated them last week.

San Ramon, another East Bay Athletic League quartet, finished fifth in the 4-A meet and could surprise if the leaders falter or drop a baton.

Williams, who won the mile and two-mile last week with strong closing finishes, figures to have her work cut out for her when she competes against Sarah Sweeny of Marin Catholic.

Sweeny has run a 5:00.2 mile this season compared to Cheri's 5:12.1. Williams has run a 11:25.2 two-mile while Sweeny has clocked an 11:26.1.

Michelle Aubuchon of Livermore in the two-mile and Kathy Lyons of Granada in the mile are two other EBAL girl stars who should make the state meet.

Lyons led Williams last week until the final 220 yards. Kathy clocked a 5:18.9 in that race.

Aubuchon ran a 11:36.0 in the 4-A meet to finish second behind teammate Williams. Arlene Daley of Granada was third in 11:40.6 and Julie Hayes of Dublin fifth in 12:00.0.

Brian McSharry of Granada stands a fair chance of making the state meet in the pole vault. He cleared 13-8 last week for a personal best, finishing second behind Don Beede of College Park who did 14-5.

Beede has the top mark in the section. Other top vaulters are Matt Pleis of Del Valle (14-2 1/4) and Tim Stanley of Montgomery of Santa Rosa (13-11).

Kathy Honour of Granada should make the state meet in the long jump as she has done 18-1 1/2, third best in the section. Suzi Boehner of Clayton Valley leads with a 18-5 1/4 while Kim Jessup of Tamalpais has leaped 18-3.

Steve Lloyd and Rob Wentworth of Livermore stand outside chances of making the trip to UCLA in the mile and two-mile, respectively.

Carol Dolsby of Monte Vista is the only other EBAL athlete with a good chance of making the state meet. She won the shot put (42-5) and discus (127-5) in the 4-A meet last week.

She leads the section in the shot put and is ranked second behind Debra Davis of Berkeley (129-2) in the discus.

Fritz Venker of San Ramon stands an outside chance of making the trip in the 220. He is tied for the second fastest time with a 22.1 clocking but only finished third last weekend.

Sox top Brewers

MILWAUKEE — Royle Stillman, a seldom-used designated hitter, doubled home one run and scored the other in a two-run fourth inning, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday.

Winner Steve Stone, 5-3, scattered seven hits over seven innings and pitched out of several jams for his fourth successive victory. Lerrin LaGrow earned his seventh save as the White Sox broke a four-game losing streak and handed the Brewers' their fifth defeat in the last seven games.

The Sox scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth, taking a 4-2 lead on singles by Richie Zisk and Jim Spencer and a sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Lamar Johnson. Don Money hit his eighth home run of the season and sixth in eight games in the eighth inning for Milwaukee's final run.

Your California Ford Dealer has the car that took on a $20,000 German Mercedes in tests for quietness and ride.

A 1977 Ford Granada* was brought to Germany for a scientific ride comparison with a Mercedes-Benz 450 SE†. Testing was conducted by an independent German engineering firm.

Test 1: Smoothness test. The engineers drove the Granada and the Mercedes at various speeds over roads in Northern Germany, ranging from cobblestone to smooth highway. Using a sensitive electronic recorder, they measured vibration levels. Results: In three out of the four tests, there were "no major differences" between the two cars.

Test 2: Quietness test. Again, the two cars were compared over a variety of German road surfaces at speeds from 30 to 55 mph. A sound meter recorded interior decibel levels on the dBA scale. Results: In all tests the Ford Granada rode as quietly as the Mercedes-Benz.

Voters in Dublin will decide Tuesday if the Peasanton Housing Authority should develop new public housing to replace World War II vintage Komandorski Village.

Tenants say rebuild

"I don't know how they handle it, but I admire them for it," she says. "There's privacy. People are considerate of their neighbors. The people in the office enforce the rules."

In contrast, at Leahy Square, she remembers, teen-agers pelted car and apartment windows with eggs, broke windows and parked their cars on the lawns. She was afraid to walk from the parking lot to her apartment at night. At Komandorski she sometimes gets home from work late but never feels afraid. "I was glad to move into Leahy," Jane relates. "It was so new, townhouses, one and a half baths, everything modern."

"After six weeks, I was glad to move out again."

Between experiences with public housing, she rented a cheap apartment in Livermore owned by a Pleasanton landlord. A neighborhood eyesore, the duplex "would have been nice if he'd kept it up. But things never did work right."

In spite of her struggles to raise nine children, Ann doesn't like to be lumped into a category and labeled low-income.

"People are people wherever you go," she declares.

But Ann and her fellow Komandorski tenants are wondering where they'll go after their housing complex is torn down in 1979.

They're hoping it will be into another subsidized apartment complex — perhaps a place where the plumbing always works and you can cook and get hot water all at the same time.

A place where "nice, friendly neighbors" and good management continue to be the most important asset.

Raze it, state says

Pleasanton Housing Authority Executive Director Michael Parsons wants it known for once and for all that the state wants the old buildings at Komandorski Village "demolished", not refurbished.

In a press release yesterday, Parsons said that the Legislative Counsel in Sacramento has given him an opinion that the housing authority is required to "demolish the temporary housing project, commonly known as Komandorski Village, as of Jan. 1, 1979."

Some critics of Measure C in Dublin have said that the old structures at Komandorski Village can and ought to be refurbished instead of torn down. But the law is the law, according to Parsons, and if people think the buildings can remain, they are mistaken.

Parsons also announced another new endorser of Measure C, Ron Hyde, a member of the Valley Community Services District Board of Directors.

A "yes" vote by Dublin voters on May 31 will authorize the housing authority to build 150 units of new public housing using federal funds.

Here's who'd live in new public units

If Dublin voters give the go-ahead to the Komandorski Village replacement in next Tuesday's balloting, the existing tenants of that former World War II project will get "top priority" for space in the new public housing complex.

And that would include some 15 families who had already been displaced from Kottenger Village when it was razed and replaced with housing for the elderly.

Michael Parsons, executive director for the Pleasanton Housing Authority, responded to several questions put to him by The Times in advance of Tuesday's crucial ballot test.

Applications for the 150 "family units" planned for the Komandorski site will be reviewed in accordance with "strict federal standards," Parsons explained. The basic qualification looks to family size and family income.

A family of four could not have total income in excess of $8,500 in 1977 dollars to qualify as tenants. A family of ten could have annual income of $11,000.

The federal code states no family can be charged rent in excess of 25 percent of total income... and that figure is adjusted downward to reflect dependancies and medical bills.

There will be no commitment to military families in the new Komandorski project as there is now in the World War II facility, Parsons noted.

Questioned as to the 33.5 acres now held by the PHA at Komandorski, Parsons said: "We will use no more than 15 acres for the new housing. The balance could be sold by the Housing Authority to help defray our debt to the federal government, or we could simply hold it against future public housing needs."

However, there can be no expansion beyond the present 150 units planned without another public referendum in Dublin, and possibly in Pleasanton also. (Pleasantonites voted in 1972 to approve 150 units of public housing, 50 of which were subsequently built at Kottenger.)

The Housing Authority is restrained by law from "making a profit" on its operations, but it may pay taxes to local and county jurisdictions "for services rendered, such as schools for housing project children, police and fire protection."

However such "in lieu taxes" are only paid when surplus revenue is available over and above maintenance and operation costs, Parsons explained.

They write complaints

Housing conditions at Komandorski Village aren't so great, according to two families who live there.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Tuggay and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Blea wrote The Times Wednesday that the floors in the existing buildings "are obviously unlevel and are not sturdy. The outdated, expensive fuel oil heaters do not even heat the whole apartment. Several children have been badly burned by the heaters as they protrude several feet from the wall and are easily accessible to them."

Their letter continues, "We have a fuse box with a switch above our stoves and we have to pull down to use the stove. If the switch is not lifted back up, there is no hot water. The walls are so paperthin, you can hear every movement your neighbor makes."

"Due to the way the kitchen sinks and bathtubs are made, the surrounding wood is rotted," they said.

Rooms and closets are too small, there's no shower, not enough play areas for children, they also said.

The money to build the new Komandorski would come from the federal government and "since many of us do work and pay federal taxes, we feel we have the right to have our tax dollars spent for decent housing for our families," wrote the two families.

R.F. Luggar II also wrote The Times to talk about the need for new housing. He lost his truck driving job in northern California, joined the Teamsters local in Oakland, worked for a year, and suddenly was laid off. He, his wife and two children were evicted from their $300 a month apartment and Komandorski Village provided him with housing he could not otherwise afford. He was due to return to work in March, but a disability prevented it, so his family still needs the quarters at Komandorski Village.

"I believe that decent housing for people on limited and low-incomes should be a moral obligation to any community," wrote Luggar. "Komandorski as it is today is far below the standard of decent housing. I would like to urge all voters to vote 'yes' on Proposition C on May 31."

IT'S JUST COMMON TRUCK SENSE.

HIWAY CITY

It's just good common sense to want great gas mileage these days. But there are more economies built into these Toyota trucks than just what you'll save at the gas pump.

Durability. It makes sense to buy a truck that'll hold up. Toyotas are built to last. That's why you see so many older Toyota trucks still in service.

Reliability. It makes sense to buy a truck you can depend on. Toyota built its reputation with reliable vehicles. For example, all 5 Toyota trucks have a transistorized ignition system for dependable starting.

Value. It makes sense to buy a truck that'll hold its value. Owning a Toyota is like money in the bank. Because Toyotas have traditionally high resale value.

*These California EPA results with manual transmission are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your truck's condition and equipment.

YOU ASKED FOR IT. YOU GOT IT.

Mental illness talks

Families of persons with serious psychiatric illnesses have very special problems.

They often feel isolated, helpless, confused and afraid. Their problems have for the most part been ignored.

Such people are invited to a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday, June 3, at Eden United Church of Christ, 21455 Birch Way, Hayward (on Grove between Foothill and Mission Boulevards.)

At a meeting sponsored by the Mental Health Association of Alameda County, speakers will discuss whether an organization should be formed to help families of the mentally ill. They will also briefly discuss the problems these families face.

— Finding out what services are available to the patient in the community, such as day care centers, board and care homes, activity programs.

— What to do when the patient refuses to take medication, go to therapy sessions or other treatment.

Hunt goes on for insects

Hitch-hiking Mexican Beetles beware!

You're wanted "dead or alive" and the county Agricultural Commissioner's gonna getcha'.

His two member teams will be scouring Valley backyards in an intensive hunt for the beetle, Gypsy Moth, Giant African Snail, Dutch Elm disease and any other unCalifornia vermin that have slipped across our borders.

Commissioner Thomas E. Shoemaker is asking residents to let the teams into backyards for the intensive bug hunt. Team members will carry photo identification cards and will drive official vehicles on weekdays through Sept. 15.

He said people "unintentionally bring in insects or weed seeds by automobile from the East Coast." The fellow travelers also slip in through airports, shipping ports and pleasure boat marinas by hitch-hiking on planes, ships and trucks.

Pleasanton plans concert

PLEASANTON—The Pleasanton Community Band will present an informal "afternoon at the park" Sunday, June 12, at Wayside Park on First Street.

The concert will launch a series that will continue through the summer and fall months.

A wide variety of concert band music and marches will be presented on the 12th, starting at 3:30 p.m. The bandstand in Wayside Park is located near the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Directed by Jerry Lapinski, the community band continues the traditions of the music performed by the Pleasanton Bicentennial Band in celebration of the Nation's 200th year. Members of the band are all amateur musicians from throughout the Valley. Anyone who has in the past played an instrument and would like to join such a group is welcome to attend band rehearsals. These sessions are held every Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Amador Valley High band room.

Following the "afternoon at the park" June 12, the band has the following dates:

June 26, opening day at the Alameda County Fair—Pleasanton Day; July 17,

Environmental puzzle

By RUSS YARROW
Leshar News Bureau

PLEASANT HILL — The Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) wants everyone to know how hard its job is in developing a Bay Area-wide environmental master plan by next year.

Soliciting local help in the project was the purpose of a public meeting sponsored by ABAG here Wednesday night.

"Our grant for the plan is $4.3 million," said one ABAG planner, "which is a lot of money to spend in two years; our problem is in that time to produce something that looks like it cost more than a couple of hundred thousand dollars."

The plan, called study 208 because of the number of a section in the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act that mandates it, will attempt to clean up and preserve the Bay Area's environment through a comprehensive examination of problems and how to solve them on a regional scale.

Identifying the problems at Wednesday night's meeting wasn't hard, most agreed, but finding solutions was.

In a series of round-table discussions among the approximately 50 persons in attendance, most of the talk centered on the polarization between industry and environment; developers said that land use shouldn't be sacrificed for air quality, while the environmentalists said that air quality should be preserved in the face of development.

All seemed to agree there was room for compromise.

Led by Supervisor Robert Schroder, Walnut Creek, the meeting identified a number of environmental problems facing the Bay Area:

- The control of pollutants running into the bay.
- Maintenance of air quality.
- Industrial discharges.
- Water conservation.
- Solid waste management.

There was also concern that the plan might curtail employment to insure clean air.

Comments from the meeting will be forwarded to ABAG's planning staff to incorporate in the development of study 208.

EBMUD oks SRV reservoir

OAKLAND — A controversial 3-million-gallon water reservoir to serve a new San Ramon Valley development was approved Tuesday by East Bay Municipal Utility District directors.

With little discussion, members approved construction of the 32-foot high tank to serve in Blackhawk Ranch.

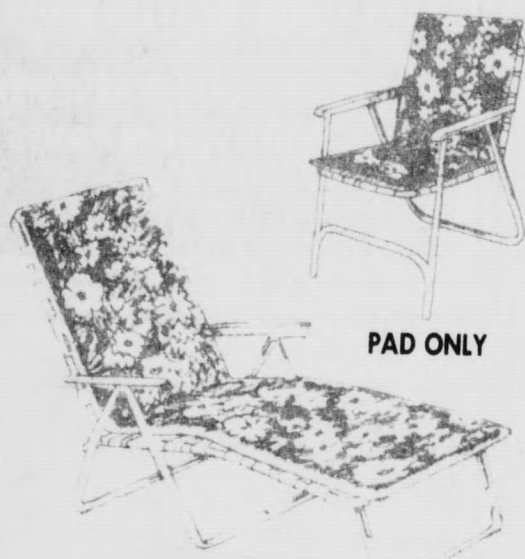

Several weeks ago the Sierra Club and the West Contra Costa County Conservation League objected to the size and placement of the reservoir, charging that its size would be too big for immediate needs, and that its location would require cutting of a number of trees.

The groups had urged the district to approve a reservoir to serve only the first phase of the development, which is to be constructed in three phases.

They argued that litigation could force a delay in the second and third phases of work and that the 3-million-gallon reservoir could be too big for the development's needs.

In other business Tuesday, directors looked over the EBMUD operating budget and agreed with staff changes that would pare $4.5 million from the $69 million proposal. Directors had ordered the staff to reduce the budget by 5 percent.
